As I reflect upon the school year, I am once again reminded of the many ways Grammar students distinguish themselves in all aspects of school life. Our students "live the mission" through their involvement with academics, athletics, and the arts.

A strong academic program is the foundation of our mission and our students excelled in their studies this year. Nearly all of the graduating class will pursue post-secondary studies at universities of choice, and many on scholarship.

Our student athletes performed admirably in competition without losing sight of the greater purpose of sport, and in doing so, adhered to the highest standards of sportsmanship.

Due to the generosity of our donors, we opened our performance arts studio and provided a home for the performing arts. This allowed our performing arts programs to grow, and different ensembles were created or grew further in size, including our concert band, which now numbers over fifty students.

And our students continued to serve, and in doing so, revealed much about their initiative and character. Numerous grass roots fundraising and service projects were conducted, which raised awareness and money for a myriad of worthy causes.

Students, in years to come, you will flip through the pages of your yearbook. Feel a sense of nostalgia as you remember your school experiences, and hopefully find a moment to reconnect with old classmates. This book chronicles the your school memories, which one day you will look back upon with pride.

As I write this, I am reminded of a quote by Douglas Adams: "I love deadlines. I like the whooshing sound as they fly by." It seems appropriate on many levels. Firstly, this note is much later then the Yearbook staff would have liked it to be; Jeric, Ms. McKegney, and a posse of helpful souls have all been pushing me to complete it for this year's Grammarian. On another level, you can also feel the collective sigh of relief from this year's graduating class as there are no more deadlines to worry about. It is now down to the final exams - they can now see the light at the end of the tunnel. Many challenges have been overcome to reach this point, and all graduates should be proud of their innumerable accomplishments while in the senior school. It has been my pleasure and honour to be a witness to them.

This year has flown by, and we must all be grateful to Thomas and Gillian for steering the student council in the right direction. Moreover, Mark's determination and commitment allowed us to purchase Godric, our first school mascot, whose persona cannot be masked by the false façade of fur and feathers. This year, Godric was a distinct mix of Thomas and Alex, raising school spirit at a number of events and in several memorable videos made for assemblies.

Good luck in the years ahead. Make the most of your natural talents and the skills you have cultivated here at HGS. Stay in touch and keep well!

AS I write this year-end message to the HGS students of 2011/12, I am looking into the hallway where I see some Middle One students launching good-sized marshmallows from their creatively designed catapults (the furthest flying marshmallows have nearly reached my door). At the same time, from a nearby class, I hear the sounds of a Middle Four student offering up a presentation to her Social Studies class, something about medieval religious life; while just across the

across the hall, a gaggle of goggle-wearing Middle Five students are holding up glass beakers of agitated fluids, trying to better understand cause and effect. Meantime, down the hall, a group of Middle Three students are gleefully engaged in a group discussion about food -- held entirely in French -- while upstairs, a math class of Middle Two students is positively pulsating with mechanical pencils and plastic protractors, crafting elaborate geometric patters in both two and three dimensions. The collective, uproarious commotion from this diverse, alchemic school action is mirthful music to my ears. It is, in the best sense of the word, a sweet sound of learning.

But there is more.

Later today, during lunch, many Middle School musicians will march with their instruments firmly in hand to the Performing Arts room where they will passionately practice their mellifluous music; while after school, a merry band of Middle School thespians will congregate in the Meinertzhagen Theatre to continue work on their collective, original creation for public performance. And while these actors pursue their craft in the confines of the theatre, our HGS Middle School athletes will be assembling on the field across the street to brave the slow-coming of spring for the perfect art of speed -- in short, medium, and long-distances -- on the Track and Field team.

It is difficult not to smile at this amazing abundance of activity. And yet, it is also difficult not to smile at the irony in providing this cross-section of Middle School action, because such a painted still life fails to truly capture what happens in this HGS Middle School.

There's just so much going on.

So how best to capture the 2011/12 school year? Well, someone once said, "Life is what happens to you while you're busy making other plans." To paraphrase this, at the HGS Middle School, learning is what happens to you while you're busy having a whole lot of fun.

And between you and me, I can't wait to do it again next year.

The word that best sums up the energy in the Prep in the 2011-2012 school year is the word creative. At the root lies the word create and it seems particularly apt in light of the first of many definitions of this word that can be found:

To cause to come into being, as something unique that would not naturally evolve or that is not made by ordinary processes;

It has been a year of energy and enthusiasm, as the children, the faculty and staff, and the parents have thrown themselves into many projects, trips and activities. We have traveled near and far both geographically and in our imaginations. We have frolicked in a farmer's field in the Annapolis Valley and traveled back in time to the days when this province was first settled. We have expressed ourselves in song, dance, pictures and words both for each other and for our families and friends, sharing with the great pride, excitement and confidence our new skills and learning. We have worked at improving what we do and how we do it through reflection and collaboration. The pages of this yearbook are filled with many wonderful examples of some of these undertakings. We have, each one of us, grown as a result, - physically, intellectually, artistically and emotionally. It hasn't always been easy, of course, but we know that nothing that is truly worthwhile ever comes without some setbacks and challenges.

It is a privilege and a delight to watch as children enter the Prep and, over time, really come into their own. We are very proud of these fine young, creative people and of ourselves and we are grateful to be part of a community of such accomplished learners.

Here's to a year well spent and all that awaits us in the 2012-2013 school year! Sincerely,

Linden Head of Prep School

Message from the Yearbook Steward

Being a yearbook editor was one of the most challenging yet rewarding experiences I have ever had. I spent countless hours hunting down graduates for baby pictures and write ups. Pages of emails and messages are a testament to the number of the things we had to juggle as a yearbook team. Never will I forget the stressful push right before a deadline. No, overcoming these challenges I will keep forever. However, I will also never forget the pride I felt after Ms. McKegney and I finished the pages for our first deadline. Nor will I forget the beautiful pages that my fellow editors created. This year, we put our heart into the yearbook, and I hope you enjoy reading it as much as we enjoyed creating it.

To end, thank you to the teachers, parents and development team members who dug up pictures, heckled their children and provided us with write ups these past few months. I would like to say thank you very much to our teacher adviser, Ms. McKegney, without whom we would not have a yearbook. Finally, thank you and congratulations to the other editors for their hard work.

Thank you to the Parent Activities Committee for another year of activities like the New Parents' Reception, Ice Cream Social, Holiday Munch, Spring Fair, Book Fair, Teacher Appreciation Day, Pizza Days and BBQ's. You add so much to our school!

Student council is extremely proud of all the things we have accomplished together this year. There were numerous activities like The Amazing Race, a dodge ball tournament and an inter-house water balloon fight. But the fun did not stop there - our winter carnival started with an exciting dance performed by the members of student councill and went on to be a jam packed week full of craziness, costumes and competitions along with skating at the oval. Having hosted several amazing dances, we hope next year's council has as much success. Throughout the year, we raised money for organizations such as the Terry Fox Foundation, The Steven Louis Foundation and Feed Nova Scotia by hosting numerous coffee houses, bake-sales and raffles. One of the most exciting accomplishments was the purchase of our new school mascot, Godric the Gryphon, who attended and cheered on our many sporting teams this year and will continue to do so well into the future. Our goal this year was to promote school spirit, give back to our community and give everyone a memorable year; we feel like we achieved this with flying colours and wish next year's student council all the best in their endeavours.

Leigha is the only one we know who has lived in the same house from birth and attended the same school from birth. She is such a smarty pants and always looks AMAZING. Whether scoring hoops on the bball court (Fab 5 MVP), or impressing everyone else in class because of her smartitude, she can always be counted on for a good old girly chat. Shopping with Leigha is great, as she has such great style!! She will excel in all her future endeavors. She is so cute and adorable, and there is not one negative thing about her personality. Whether she is assisting Tinthi with her work in geo or organizing prom with Isabella, Leigha always has time to chat about boys and do school work. She is a great laugh and a fantastic friend. Our Quebec trip was crazy. Every morning, we would wake up, shower, eat breakfast and start putting on 10 layers of clothing. Regardless of all the suffering we went through, we sure did enjoy shopping around the same street for five days! I am really glad that we got to spend New Year's Eve and New Year 's Day together; that was great. LOVE YOU! xoxox GFM AC TT IL MS KL

In September of 2009, I met Grace Bu at the senior school orientation day where we were both new to the school. While we were doing an orientation activity, I tripped Grace by accident, which I still feel sorry for. However, that accident made a connection between Grace and me. Without the incident, we wouldn't have been able to be as close as we are right now. My first impression of her was that she was very quiet and a bit shy. I thought it would be hard to be her friend. But as time went on, we began to sit together in several classes and started to do things together, which led us to get even closer. Finally, I realized my first impression of her was completely wrong. She talks a lot, is humorous, and is a good listener who I can trust. If Twilight were real, she would be Jasper, not only for her effect on others, but her supernatural ability to go without sleep. Without her, I probably would not have been able to survive HGS for so long. Something most people don't know is that Grace is a good singer, but she never sings in front of other people. Her ability to come up with hairdos out of thin air, to make everyone laugh with only a single word, and to be as cool as a cucumber, are only a few of the many things that her friends love and will miss about her. – Ryan

Alice!!!! Fresh off the boat from England, this British/Hong Kongish "dahling" charmed everyone upon arrival in Grade 9. Known for her silly sayings, this charismatic young lady is truly a magical character in her little Alice in Wonderland Halloween costume. Though she can hardly handle the red potion, she still manages to get a laugh out of her many adventures. She and Tinthi spend a full day together, so Tints is often frustrated with this gal's lack of hearing. Known for her (shock/horror) Republican/conservative ideas, Alice will probably one day be in the government enforcing the lockdown of Hammonds Plains with no evidence to back her up. This passionate girl adores lolling with Miss Brock in geo over arguments in which she is always wrong. When gossiping loudly in the corridor, she is always ready to inform the world about the latest happenings in students', teachers' and celebrities' lives. My one and only Alice in Wonderland, you've brought tears to my eyes.......your lovely poses in various pictures are fabulous. We love you, and I appreciate the times when you listened to me before we went to bed and shared our secrets;). Love you always, KJ, TT, MS, IL, GFM, LA

Won Jae came to our school as an enigma in grade eleven. At the time, we had no idea where he was from or what school he had been at previously. However; we found out who the real Won Jae was weeks later. Firstly, he was a math prodigy. He understood everything that was thrown at him, a talent which the entire HL Math class envies to this day. He was so good, he even flaunted it; on top of HL Math, he decided to take Further Math just to prove he was great. Another moment of true mathematical genius was when he stunned the math league room by solving a question no one had a solution for, including his team mates. We blindly trusted him and for that, we won regionals. Won Jae also loves classical music. I first discovered this while walking into a math class. Won Jae had his hands in the air holding a conductor wand and was listening to some Mozart or Chopin or other obscure Renaissance composer's concerto (I never was good at music). While I stood back in awe and humour, he quickly dropped his hands and described his aspirations to me. He started piano late because of his new found passion for classical music. I'm no longer surprised to hear him blasting classical music in the lounge or library. Won Jae, I'm so glad you came to Grammar in grade eleven. Wish you the best in your studies in both math and music – Jeric

Alex Dawson

Alex Dawson is known to most as 'Dawson' and to a few silly willies as 'Alex.' This ideal outdoorsman was destined to roam the wilderness from a young age. He can occasionally be found in the middle of a forest for no particularly good reason. He was born on the mountainous slopes of Wentworth, sheltered from the treacherous conditions only by his trustworthy tent, which he built from scratch using sticks and wild mice pelts. (Yes, he built the tent that he was born in.) Alex is probably the only person in the grade who will survive the zombie apocalypse on December 12, 2012. For Alex, there is no tree too tall to climb, no fact too random to know, and no French teacher too picky to endure. Despite his generosity and overall pleasantness, he has an interest in heavy metal and dubstub. Alex's talents include Physics, History, biking, shooting stuff, and making stun-guns out of disposable cameras. (I had a taser mark on my hand for a week.) Alex is rational, resourceful, blonde, and a genuinely nice guy. We wish him the best.

Saaahhharrra! You are simply great. As my chemistry buddy, we have struggled through a lot together. No matter how many times Mr B. explains something, we always manage to figure out stuff on our own. We have bickered over who has the right answer, and I often end up frustrated and angry at you. However, you always kept a smile on your face, and laughed it off. Your sweetness is beyond this world. You are such a cutie, as I would like to say. Your stressful times will pay off, Sahara, as your future will be truly amazing. You will be a great doctor, no doubt. Also, you never fail to make someone smile or laugh. Math class with Mr. Moffatt is hilarious when you begin disputing him. He gets frustrated, and then you get frustrated. It's hilarious and fun for the entire class. I just want some popcorn. You are unforgettable, Sahara! Good luck in university; I will miss you so much. One tip though, please stop getting in fights with Jeric or any other future classmate and chasing him or her down the hallway. - Love, Mareina

What first comes to mind when thinking about Mark is how incredibly creative he is. He has been an active member of circus school for several years. Sadly, he was forced to leave after a fiasco with some clowns. He plays trombone, harp and ukulele often performing for the school, either with the jazz band, the concert band, or at coffee houses and talent nights, either with his jazz band or accompanying Arielle's singing. He stared in Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, and is rehearsing for another leading role in this year's musical, The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee. While doing all this, Mark still manages to find the time to create ingenious prize winning Halloween costumes, be the student council treasurer, run cross-country, and, of course, keep his marks near the top of the grade. Mark is the type of person who can do anything he puts his mind to. As one example of the creative approach Mark takes to everything in life, just look at the Terry Fox run. While others are satisfied just to complete the run, Mark adds the extra challenge of doing it while juggling. We wish you the best of luck in the future.

G arrived at Grammar in grade 7 from the United States of America. Super Gillian is an over-achiever in every aspect of the word. Whether she's volunteering, traveling to Hong Kong, talking people out of their money, running her butt off and being head girl, she's always there for everyone. We all love hanging out @ G's house jamming to Hillary Duff or enjoying some super duper baked goods. Gillie is always laughing and is a great friend. Gillie, we will remember so many good times with you: watching movies in your basement, walking with Newton and Meg in Point Pleasant, spending days at the beach and having sister sleepovers: Love Actually!!! She is such an amazing person and a great listener and will definitely excel in everything that her future holds. She is a force of power both in school as our head girl and on the bball court (Fab 5). She works hard, but she plays hard too (never forget the Asian flush haha). Getting to know you back in the day from Grade 9 to now has been so fantastic. Love your amazing friend xoxo. Good luck in the future. xoxo AC LA IL TT MS KL taight from Dubai, Chloe first graced the halls of Grammar in grade 11. Being the shy and quiet person she is, it was really hard to to know her, but after we met in R&W, we've been inseparable. Famous for her awesome events, Chloe's upbeat enthusiasm is landed her the position of House Captain among other things, like "the most enthusiastic attitude towards the EE" award and add in the school's musicals. Over the two short years I have known Chloe, we've undertaken many endeavours, including owning ople on the soccer field, having guitar jam-sessions on the dock, doing Friday night joneseses runs with the boys, and pursuing ther shenanigans. This doesn't begin describing how great our friendship is. Never forget, "life's not about waiting for the storm to ss, it's about learning to dance in the rain." I'll miss you so much next year! Love always, xoxo amandagirl.

n new student day, Chloe showed me that there is a prince inside of everyone, as long as you have the right princess. From ilkshakes to marriage, McDonalds has been a secret hideaway for me and the tree woman, when were not off eating cucumbers at is! Chloe is both an amazing person and the best friend I have ever had. I mean, we practically share parents (Michelle and Joe Nathan")! Chloe, keep up the 3-pointers, smiling and errmm, being everything you can be <3. So much love. Kelsey xox

Matt Gallupe has bled green and gold for the last 13 years. Matt is first and foremost a golfer. Although having that role model of Tiger Woods, Matt has pulled through on his back swing to the top of his game. Matt has an endless number of golf stories ranging from good days at the driving range to bad luck on the green, which he never tires of telling. The ground must be angry from all the times Matt has whacked it with his clubs. Despite never playing the game once in my life, I now know a fair amount about golf because of him, regardless of whether I wanted to learn about it or not. Apart from being one the best golfers in Canada, Matt is also one of Grammar's star basketball players scoring over 15 points a game on Grammar's prestigious JV team. But when I think of Matt, I don't think about the sports jock who owned the Grammar hallway, but of the times we hung out together playing OMGPOP and going to movies like Fast Five. We all wish you luck in life after Grammar, and hopefully someday, you'll achieve your dream of living in Florida, enabling you to play golf all year long. MJ,AL,EG

For the last 13 of his 17 years, Everett has had his high caliber education at the Halifax Grammar School. Being just down the street from school, Grammar became his life. He would constantly wake up at 5:30am to do his homework, simply because he could and still finish in time for the first bell. Ev accomplished many things over the years, from spelling "witch" to competing in the ultimate Frisbee Canadian Nationals. Throughout Ev's later career at the Grammar School, he competed on multiple sports teams including junior high and senior soccer, tennis and a stellar 2011 Junior Varsity Basketball team that had an amazing record of 1-1-12 (the tie was a fierce battle with local rivals Armbrae). He also got to know some specific grade 11's better than the rest of us, and of his other acquaintances, he prefers fellow students in German class. He has an addictive personality, and he will never give up a chance to watch some quality television on, for example, Sundays, Tuesdays, or Thursdays. Many, many hours were spent gaming with you; some highlights will stick in my memory from FIFA, Dragonball Z, GTA, and Impossible Game! Have fun in UNI! – MJ, JM, and SS.

Thomas Gwynne-Timothy, came to the Grammar School in grade six with a Palm Pilot in hand and hand sanitizer around his waist. Although he didn't let me play with his Palm Pilot, we were still able to become friends early on. As time progressed, GT developed into a ruler, as can be seen from his electrifying job as a Head Boy, along with the brain to match it. To this strapping young lad, the world is his oyster. Whether it's Chemistry, Physics, touch football, and Crazy 8's, GT has been known to put his heart fully into whatever he does and never seems to fail. In our six years as friends, I'd have to say that I never felt closest to GT than when uniting with him in the art of dance on stage. Now I'm not saying there weren't many other memories, but that one was truly something special. From our times in Europe, to binge eating at Ashburn, or even shouting at our friend "Darrell", I'll always cherish the times that we've had. We may be off to different parts of the country next year for university, but I know that won't change our future plans to start up GTA Engineering down the road. Wherever Thomas ends up going and whatever he ends up doing, I can be sure that he will be able to do anything he sets his mind too. I wish you luck, AM.

Tala is the newest grade twelve in Halifax Grammar. She took a big, bold step coming to Grammar for her last year of high school, and she took the challenge in full stride. Even after being a year behind in Spanish, she caught up and is Espanoling with the best of them. However, I am glad that she came to be one of us Grammarians. She has been a great addition to the HGS students. As the year went on, I have gotten to know Tala more and more. She is simply a sweetheart from her cheerful attitude to her giving nature. No matter how hard the endless amount of work we had, she never forgot to smile and laugh. She never failed to forget about the stressful assignments and test, and regardless, go enjoy her weekends. Also, she never left a single time where she would not ask if anyone needed anything from SMU. Lastly, let's not forget that she is from Jordan, so she's also a multi-cultural addition to the senior school. MLI3 <3. Best of luck 7abibty as you open a new chapter in your life. -Love, Mareina

Florent Herbinger

The first time I heard the name Florent, I knew there was something unique about this guy. Although he fooled many the firs few months he joined Grammar in grade nine with his reserved spirit, his interesting character became apparent. Whether it wa coming up with new theories, his passion for chess, headphones, electronic music, DJing, computer gaming, and Ping-Pong, couldn't keep up what new passion was to come next. Not only has Florent explored many things while at Grammar, he has also partaken in many sport activities at Grammar. For example, the Grammar soccer team for..., [years] and track and field for [years]. He has also shown on several accounts his skill in science, coming second in the grade nine science fair, partly thanks t' me:). Although Florent had left for half a year in grade eleven to go to Mexico, he has since returned bringing back his uniquideas along with an extra language and a beard that won't be matched by any Grammarian in the near future. I think I can speak o behalf of the entire senior school when I say that your unique spirit and your contributions to the Grammar School will be missed—lan

When I met Mitchell for the first time, he made an awesome impression on me by making it to Ms. Cooper's office for profanity and mild violence on the first three days in a row! Mitchell is a great "story" teller using exaggeration as his main literary device, especially when talking about his good friend "Charlie". A lot of all-nighters pulled doing various things including perfection DBZ during a 24hour time period ... Our one year of Varsity Ball together was a pretty sick experience, and Mitchell definitely made a good impression in the "S Five" with his amazing should-be four pointer! Our road trip to Quebec City was pretty sick, with many skivvy memories coming to mind. One highlight of my three year relationship with Mitchell is when I beat him in our best-of-seven 2k-11 battle. Unfortunately, that is probably the only time I have ever beaten him in video games, as Mitchell takes great pride in his natural gaming ability! Mitchell even starred in a remix of the pop song TikTok by KE$HA; however, it was a bit embarrassing, as it highlighted his OMGPOP addiction ... Dartmouth people know him as "Mr. Designer"; we know Mitchell has a very perceptive sense of his own appearance, with a watch for every occasion. While trying to live up to "Barney's" standards, Mitchell has shown his bro-ness is anything but sub par. – Ev, SS, and John

Cazamatraz is very much a strange girl, but that's what we love about her. The way she bursts out laughing in the middle of a conversation (or else vehemently interjects with an energetic "meow"), and how she isn't afraid to leap from table to table, the aws of physics acknowledged but dismissed as trivial. These are only some of the ways she continues to surprise us. She doesn't hink twice to help a friend, or to bring them a coffee to class, and is herself trustful enough to allow others to help her, unless it is to assert that 1 and 1 do not make 3. Do not get discouraged if she doesn't remember your name, her name spelled backwards, or where India is; she means well (plus she'll always have Google Maps!) If she starts stalking you, do not despair; he just wants to be friends, although if any kind of insect goes near you, she'll leave you for dead. Marty 1.0, we really hope hat you learn to incorporate sleep into your daily routine, even if it is in physics class. We will miss you loads, Aizartam, and we

Prince Bassel of Syria is used to having the world handed to him on a silver platter, as he is used to the luxures in life. He enjoys traveling to places like Monte Carlo and Ibiza on his many travels. Bassel, as a word class rider, spends his Grammar breaks on his horses. This dedication allowed him to qualify for the 2012 Olympics. He is caring, supportive and generous to all of his friends, and he never fails them. It is most certain that HGS will never forget Bassel, as he has shared so many of his adventures with us. He is infamous for using his great charm to attract the attentions of MANY girls. Bassel has a motto that he abides by religiously: Gotta Build That Muscle Man! He takes his workouts very seriously, as he is often heard saying in the hall that it's chest day or shoulder day. For those many girls that have fallen for Bassel, late night workouts are the icing on the cake, for he has a personality that steals many people's hearts. His SWAG is also unforgettable, as it entails so much, from his Escalade to his Hermes belts. His safe yet violent driving has been the cause of tears of fear, laughter, and excitement, which will never be forgotten by his friends. Bassel never fails to surprise everyone at HGS. Best of luck in the years to come and at the 2012 Olympics. Do it for the Middle East!!—HR, KJ, AC, TT, MS, and IL

This girl is the nicest nerd you will ever meet, and I would know, since we are practically dating? We met on the very first day of chool. On new student day, we teamed up as a "new girl force" just in case we were unable to make any friends;). It actually worked out very conveniently, considering when we talk to each other we cause these looks on people's faces that resemble ":o", is they desperately try to understand what we are talking about so quickly, which is truly humorous for us! Kelsey is super pretty, and even though she's blonde, she's one smart cookie. She'll debate you on everything and anything and come out a champ. She conce dragged me out of bed at 7 on the weekend to make me help her do her science fair project, and then spilled diesel on my lands, hahaha. I literally love this girl and when we aren't flying kites on citadel, we are ripping it up on the bball court;) to eve you long long long long long time girly, Chloe XO.

Keon Joo knocked everyone over with her style when she came to Grammar in Grade 9. This confused Korean is endearing to everyone with her sweet and caring nature, especially a certain MG WOOOO. Her sweet and ditzy personality made everyone fall in love with her. Remember all the funny and silly times @ Cora's and wearing the slippers around your home. She has lent her house for many a wild night. Remember all the good times in that place? A provider of good food? Good parties and great hugs? She is an amazing friend. Thanks for all the advice: love our heart to hearts. I can literally write a book about you, but I will just make this short. We clearly were not that close in grade nine. You state that I gave you harsh stares, but I beg to differ. You are an amazing person. You were always there for me with all my drama. You always make me smile, and I enjoy our omik jokes! You're basically family according to my mom, as she arabified you. I love the three words you taught me in Korean. I will never forget them. Although I make fun of your construction boots, you look amazing 24/7. You will be a great fashion designer, and one day I will be buying Lee couture. Love you to the moon and back. Love you so much baby, miss you and good luck. TT AC IL LA GFM AC MS

Boy. If only that were enough to describe Ryan. Of course, Ryan had to be one of the oldest and maturest of us all (although that might be considered a logical fallacy by some, sometimes even forgetting that he is older), and the one with all the tech knowledge despite, some would say, his timid but thoughtful nature. He may sometimes be in a bad mood or jokingly saying no, but till the very end, he's still there for you. You only need to annoy him a little bit to get him to help you, but his awesome cakes are only for some people, and you should be jealous of his lunch every single day. He has an even bigger obsession with stationary than Val, which is saying something; he lives in a world in which spoiling the unused pencil eraser is the worst imaginable sin. The same world in which Miss A and Miss B are the most important things (maybe teddy bears are more important), although tripping them is not a way to gain their favour for anyone who isn't Ryan. Even so, it seems that the only couple fights are those between him and Jeric. Either way, three years later, we're all still together. We'll miss you and your ho ho ho's. PS, if you're looking for the younger look, maybe it's time to revisit the hair wax? We've become worried with how much you've lost in the last three years (height and weight <-- proud of ya). -G.B

Arielle Legere

If you ask Arielle what she wants to do with her life, she'll look you straight in the eye and answer, "performer." Although an unusual response for a Grammarian, anyone who really knows her will say that she's ready. She took the stage with Annie. She dreamed of gruel and stole as a little boy in Oliver. She practically married a chair for two hours in Urinetown and became a spoiled British girl for our school's production of Willy Wonka. She breaks a leg regardless of the part. Also, she has dedication that surpasses everything I could ever hope to do. I would have quit dancing after breaking my first toe (partly because of my disinterest in all things athletic), but Arielle continues even after many, in the attempt to best all the other aspiring artists vying for the same prestigious theatre programs. She'll appear on Broadway one day; I'm sure of it. (Don't forget me. I need tickets). But beyond her as a performer, she is also the best friend anyone could ever hope for. She waited as I finished my rant on Walt Whitman, despite her deep appreciation for English. She was there for me when I needed a bear hug, despite her being half my size. She let me be myself around her, despite the awkward looks we got while we sang Adele songs down the hall. Even if we end up in different arts of the world, Arielle, you and I will be friends for a long time. - er-Bear

Alex Lingley came to Grammar in grade 11 and was smaller than Mitchell. However, after his growth spurt, Mitchell reclaimed the honor. He walked into our halls with an arrogant smile because of his 100% average in DHS math; however, he met his match in Mr. Moffatt's HL math class. Even though you might expect Alex to go through high school with a clean slate, he broke his first rule in Keji when he wandered off the peninsula! Mr. Moffatt was very angry! We expected him to help our cross-country team; however, with his frequent "injuries," he was not able to go to provincials. Some of these injuries include a pulled hip flexor, shin splints (forever), and, most recently, a self injured knee. Alex Lingley has some mad soccer skills; however, he rarely used them to score goals, to the disappointment of his teammates, including his epic penalty shot miss. You can distinguish Alex Lingley by his flaming red hair and his Livestrong bracelet, which he always has on his arm, even during important English presentations. Good luck in your future endeavors. Hopefully, your "injuries" won't hold you back too much!

Alex Lingley

Isabella Ludovice

It was love at first sight when Isabella graced the halls of Grammar in grade 10. She stole the hearts of all the boys and ha continued to flirt her way from grade 10 to grade 12. Proud of her Philippine roots, she enjoys spending time in Dal. Which area you might ask? Who knows? Seriously, this stunning girl is super organized and loves being in charge. With a certain affinity of all things male, she will not be forgotten at Grammar in the near future. We love izzy, whether she's persuading us to drive to Bedford, or letting her hair down on Friday nights. Sitting in the lounge, izzy is often spotted slowly inserting oatmeal into he mouth. Every spare chance izzy is persuading us to accompany her to her favorite spot, Petes. She is super sweet, and you can always count on izzy to have her camera ready to take crazy pictures. She is THAT person who you want to groove with and have wild times with. You know what they say.....hahahaha. Thanks for understanding our obsessions with Dubstep. Be aware everyone; she is a crazy passenger when listening to Mozart's classical music on car rides. El zebella dee. Dude, I love you. We have our great lolz. IMISM in biology class DALE. For the past 13 years, Alex's presence has truly blessed the Halifax Grammar School. I realized this from the first day I set foot inside the primordial halls of the Tower Road Campus. Although 7 long years have passed since our first encounter, and his once boyish face is now covered with a beard that would elicit envy in even the most grown of men, Alex has not completely changed. His entire fist still fits completely into his mouth, and he can still make some of the most miraculous athletic plays in the history of the Grammar School. From his incredible one-hand football catches in grade 7 and 8, to his Ultimate Frisbee finesse in grade 10, to his laser beam mini-sticks slap shots in grade 12, Alex has consistently shown that he combines the strength of Agamemnon with the timing of Vincent Lecavalier. But Alex is no one trick pony. No, he has a wit sharper than the pain of being run over by a large SUV and can make jokes in even the most serious of ToK debates. But folks, that's not all. Alex also has an unmatched sense of style. He is often seen sporting the latest track pants. For his upper body. Alex has an extensive wardrobe of hoodies, and a top his head often sits a backwards Tampa Bay snapback that compliments his Freddie Mercury-like visage quite nicely. Alex has been a great friend, and the Grammar School won't be the same without him. —GT

If first met John Muir on our Dartmouth Peewee hockey team back in grade six. At the time I really didn't know John that well. All I knew was that he was a scrappy defence man who Larky Louis could plow over at any given moment, but that was all about to change the following school year. John Muir, the first true Dartmouth school kid to ever step foot in our class, came to the Halifax Grammar School in grade seven with his short stature of approximately four foot zero. Since that day, John has grown to his current sky scraping height of five foot eight and has grown to be a good friend of mine. Throughout John's six year history at the Grammar School, I've gotten to know him quite well from the days of Mrs. Woodford's History and Mr. Peterson's Math classes, his attempted crowd surfs at middle school dances, to his imaginary snake encounter the night at Camp Mockingee and the botched marketing idea of snapbacks. John never seems to get sick of gaming with his friends and little prother on Friday nights, even though he very rarely succeeds in beating him (Stephen). We will miss you man, and good luck with your post high school career. MJ MG

Debi Ogunrinde

Having already asserted her dominance as a world class debater, Debi is moving on to bigger and better things. On a daily basis, she saves millions of lives with her numerous global affairs campaigns; remarkably, she is able to simultaneously best the challenge of never repeating an outfit once through the months of September to December. She can often be seen attempting to fulfill her endless list of responsibilities and desires, but is still able to find time to entertain herself with her friends, home renovation shows, and her large treasure trove of assorted Costco goods. As a high academic achiever, Debi casually misses class due to debating tournaments yet is able to maintain an academic average high enough to be deferred to Harvard regular admissions. Debi takes pride in believing that she has coined popular terms such as "derp","QT", "bo$$y" and more. Unfortunately, Debi did not have time this year to perform her promised solo rendition of Souljia Boy's 'Pretty Boy Swag', but her ability to rap and dougie are just more of her hidden talents. Debi has become a friend to whom I can turn for anything, be it a serious conversation or a ten minute laugh. Debi, the good times we've shared will be remembered long after high school is over, and I am sure that you will succeed in all of your future endeavours. I wish you the best! - Marvin in is a perfect candidate, not only for IB, but for about everything else. He not only has the perfect grades, but he has no stress nat comes along with these great grades. Over the years at the Senior School, Ian has shown such low levels of stress. His zen at titude is the envy of the entire grade. In addition, he swims about 20 billion times a week. How does he do it? On top of the frammar workload, how does he wakeup at five to go and swim for his team? No one knows, but it is truly amazing. Even with these great grades, he manages to bring his sense of humour to class. HL French class is a class where Ian shows his dramatic" reading skills. Let's not forget his great attire, for Ian is known for his great hipster fashion. One can give him total redits for truly dressing well every day. Don't worry Ian, we have forgiven you for not wearing your now-patented skinny hans and plaid in grade ten. It was a dark year for all of us. Have an amazing time in university; I know you will! Best of luck or the years to come! – Mareina (friends since primary)

Ian Palmeter

Minsu, under the alias Daniel "Puffy D" Park, has been at HGS since grade 7, when he came over to Canada from South Korea with nothing more than his puffy jacket and the will to succeed in a new country. He's known for his world-renowned soccer kick that can put a dent in anyone's ball. Speaking of balls, Daniel Park is also a good basketball player, and while he didn't get the most playing time as the resident benchwarmer on the D3 team, he still gives it his all on the court. The name "Puffy D" had its origins in his love for rap music and his tendency to wear his winter jacket indoors (which happens to make a good punching bag for anyone in need of intimate physical contact coughkirancough). We cannot thank Kiran and Daniel enough for keeping us all entertained with their cute slapping wars in the back row. While it's hard to move on to a serious note from this comedic tone, it's necessary to say that Daniel has been a good friend over the years and has always viewed the world with an open mind.

Oh, Jer-Bear, we've had some times. From musical rehearsal to English class debates to not playing attention in Spanish class (Sorry, Señora!), my high school experience would have been a lot duller (if more productive) without you in it. Although we definitely don't agree on everything, (no matter what you say, math is, and always will be, a disgusting subject), we've stayed by each other's sides long enough that many people seem to think that we're dating. (Did they miss your flaming pink sweater?) Then again, that might be because of our numerous theatrical romances.

But underneath all of our wacky adventures, you really are the very best friend a person could ask for. You're funny and very honest, and you certainly don't let anyone's ego get out of control. You're always there with an awkwardly long hug when I need one, and I'm so glad that I didn't have to go through high school as the only musical theatre freak. Who else would loudly sing Wicked or Rent duets with me while strolling around South End Halifax? I think we should choose to think that the shocked expressions of passer-bys were due to our mind-blowing talent and nothing else. -A.L

Shorts. Everyday. Yes, even in winter. That's the Sexy John Perrie guarantee. That, and an amazing new t-shirt every week. But beyond his affinity for bare limbs, he has many serious interests, including building with Lego, being excessively polite, listening to obscure rap artists, and debating why they are better than your own musical taste. While he may procrastinate some English assignments, he has a talent for describing disgusting things in a poetic way. We try to limit Johnny's swearing, but his language seems to get filthier everyday... Luckily, he already has an established business of going on pizza runs, and is making a steady income at $1.50/ mile. But the greatest slice of Johnny (if we were to cut him into bite-size pieces of flesh and skin) is that he embraces all these ... eccentricities ... and disregards any superficial judgments of others. He is a very caring person, has a genuine interest in helping others, and hopes to become a doctor someday. We wish you the best of luck.

Hamza first came to the school in grade 11, yet everyone feels that they have known Hamza for ages. Hamza Rshidat "me im Hamza man" can often be found at the latest gathering ENJOYING life. His many pleasures include chatting to his love Siri on his portable and radiation free telephone. He never fails to make someone laugh with his great sense of humour. Through his time at Grammar since grade11, Hamza has many adventures with "people" including IL ;). Hamza enjoys his violent side, which was revealed to all in the frog incident at Keji. Along with his sense of humour comes his attitude of being a very good friend. His safer side shows an experienced pilot, flying every weekend like a pro. Lastly, Hamza managed to do concurrent chemistry, a subject many struggle to do in two years; however, Hamza manages to score extremely well. – something that bewilders all his friends. Bassel and Joni "La genta esta muy loca" are Hamza's good friends. They always manage to have a good laugh, from whaddup jokes to jokes in Arabic that no one else understands. Best of luck in University, Hamza!!- BK, TT, KJ, AC, MS, and IL

When we first met you in grade nine, you passed by me in the hallway leaving a strong image: BIG GOLDEN HOOPS WITH BURT STARES. You were scary. When we first got to know each other in Europe, I knew it from the first time that we were going be TIGHT, no not really. You were always there for me when I needed someone; you are that person who I could rely or and share my emotions with. Mareina will soon move to London where she will commence her British Medicinal Education Mareina's Arabian birth is a source of pride, as she can be found bantering with Bassel and Hamza in Arabic in the lounge. She is fine lady who often spends time driving her obnoxious red jeep aggressively along the streets of Halifax to soccer practice (pro) Isabella & Mareina also enjoy speaking in very grammatically and politically incorrect slang, where they end up just loling all day the trolling will be continued and never end. She is so very beautiful that people always tend to want to paint her face. Thank you for being there for me milky; me love you long time, and you will always be in my heart no matter where you are. Best luck love P.S. make sure to send me milk using the saucepan I will be giving to you!

Kiran Sivakumar is one of the most wonderfully strange people we know. He also goes by many names, such as Kiki, Orecau Homme, and Farmer K, all of which reflect his complex personality; however, Kiran still enjoys simple pleasures like $L math, badminton, anime marathons, and watching Legally Blonde with his mother. Don't get on his bad side though, or you may have to endure one of his many rants (usually about the corruption of the music industry) or even a 15 minute drum solo. Kiran's preferred religion is Megadeth, which he practices daily on his guitar. He seems very committed to his current bands, which we hope will not go in the same direction as his previous band Darkmatter. He may have difficulty reading literature passages any longer than those in Sparknotes, but he is determined to graduate. But seriously, Kiran is a hard worker, not only in school, but also in video games, earning him good marks and an occasional world record in Guitar Hero. Many chehéd well wishes from your buds.

Valeriya Sokolenko, doesn't that have such a great ring to it? Better than Victoria or Lucy, and much more fun to say! Val is one of the most multi-dimensional people we know. Her ability to speak incoherently fast and to write small enough to affect her own sight is not all there is to her. When we first met Val, we all thought she was a little intimidating, with her almond eyes that have that unique power to, quote, "stare a hole right through you." Who knew that underneath her seemingly quiet and sophisticated manner was the laid-back, charming, and KD-loving friend that we all know and love? Val's humor never lacks, whether it be her witty comebacks or her entertaining dances dedicated to the fire gods that we witnessed at Keji. It didn't take us long to realise we were in the presence of a Russian goddess; seriously, our little Sputnik has so many other-worldly talents, it's impossible to think she isn't divine. We have never met anyone more coordinated than Val. It didn't take us long to realise her passion for Hacky Sack. Whether it be in random classrooms at HGS (or Quebec), at the beach, or in Second Cup, Val always finds the perfect opportunity to practice her amazing Hacky Sack skills, all the while making us un-coordinated beings look bad, which we will strangely miss. Val, we wish you all the best next year and look forward to our next DDR sleepover!

Sven Stammberger

"Sven Stammberger was born a tall German child....sometimes he likes to mix it up." Sven first came to Grammar in grade 10, adding considerably to the overall lankiness of the school, as well as to its total food consumption. Although he has also contributed creatively, being somewhat of an artsy child, he has won cookie-decorating contests and even wrote an OmgPop tik tok remix ($ven Ke$ha). Sven is also a very bright student, despite what you might think when you first meet him. He has a mad obsession (verging on a crush) for Dirk Nowitzki. Having more frees than classes, Sven's natural domain has become the computer lab, putting hours into perfecting his hover kart battle skills. In fact, Sven was one of the original Grammar omgpop professionals. He tends to have a few athletic tendencies as well though. He seems to excel in every sport that involves a net... from badminton to slime soccer. Sven is also known to play basketball occasionally. He once competed in an 8 foot dunk competition...He lost, but we still appreciate him for it to this day. Sven can most easily be identified in the school by his height, attraction to sweatpants, and also his steadfast bicycling habits. We wish you the best in University and everywhere else life takes you. "Take dat wit chew." MJ,AL,EG have yet to find something Amanda is not good at. She's one of the two girls in the HL math class, and continually beats her fellow assmates in "the art of problem solving." She cheerleads, volunteers, and kicks butt as a second dan black belt in Tae-Kwon Do, here the only thing keeping her from kicking everyone's butt at school is her tiny waist. Yet, you'll never find her without a snack ther hand, somehow managing to make a stolen, home-made alfredo-original combo KD sound good. Although her chopstick tills are questionable, as is her approach to school, we will forgive her that: she thinks that if she whispers quieter, the teacher is nore likely going to hear her (correct) answer. Somehow, no matter how often we steal her answers, she seems to simply become tore convinced of the value of her approach. Either way, Amanda is just a fun person to talk to. She can talk to anyone about nything, even if it's about school, and her ability to make hair clips and ribbons look sophisticated is beyond me; I don't remember ne last time I saw her without nail polish on, even if it was done that morning on the way to school. Overall, we're going to miss er heels and the well-deserved inches it gave her above Martazia, and her slightly exasperated help in physics, let alone her wesomeness as an awesomely awesome, awesome person.

Chitinthi Tembo

Tinthi can always be found lounging in the lounge screeching down the hall to everyone with her obnoxious voice. Chomping on just about anything (especially bananas), she enjoys being driven to her house and skipping the "useless classes." She has long been known for hating Grammar's workload, being lazy, and depending on her "provider" for snacks. Tints can often be heard "connecting" with Mitchy and Sveny. She has many favorites, one of them being the word "useless", which she uses to describe many of her classmates. We love you the way you are because you are amazing. We don't care what other people think about your obsession with bananas and your crazy laughs; that's what we like about you. We love when you listen to us because you actually listen and try to come up with many solutions. We've gone through ups and downs for four years now, but nothing can separate us. Thanks for being in love with me; I hope we go to Evolve together this year; let's make it happen, babe. We predict Tinthi will continue to tell it like it is @ UBC. You have probably seen Colin pacing the hallways with his notes before each and every test, frantically memorizing Mr. Beazley's word for word. But what you might not know is that Colin's mom has been our private chauffeur over the years, a classic example of Colin's generosity. In grade 9 German class, he popularized the phrase "deine mutter ist in meinem Schlafzimmer" (your mother is in my bedroom). On top of his refined sense of humour, his musical skills on the saxophone rival those of the Sexy Sax Man. A member of many bands, Colin has also been able to unleash his creativity through his kooky and unforgettable compositions. He has been involved in many sports at Grammar, as a baller and a soccer star. His conversations are chock-full of his signature perpetual sarcasm. Speaking of sarcasm, Colin is always concise when writing tests. Colin is not only unafraid to be different, he consistently gives his best effort to disturb his friends with his oddness. Anywho, best of luck in the future, Colin.-A.D., M.F., J.P., K.S.

It was a lonely cold day in R&W when Amanda sat down next to me and was thinking how awesome I was and that she wished she could talk to me. So, one day, I thought aww, she is so cute; I guess I'll talk to her... so I did! And we were biffles ever since! "A real friend is one who knows everything about you but still loves you anyway." I'm positive that if you combined all of Amanda's quotes, you could fill a couple of gallons of books or maybe even more. From soccer to hockey to doing my nails, Amanda is perfect in every way. You name it, I promise she can do it better than me. But really though, she is there for me whenever and wherever, even though I'm pretty sure I embarrass her to death;). I can't even count the number of sleepovers or jam sessions we have had. I'm surprised the Gilmore girls DVD's are still intact and her BP hoodie isn't totally worn out yet. It has gotten to the point where Amanda's house is my second house, and Sue is my second mom, and I get way too excited when we have game nights with the boys. I trust her with legit (she taught me that word) anything. She knows everything about me and I think we were separated at birth? Maybe? Amanda is my best friend and I am not looking forward to leaving her next year. I don't know how I could survive without her. Love you always, xoxoxo ChloeGirl.

Shad valley, math league, track team, Tiny Wings prodigy, StuCo, piano, and the Grammarian tech wizard since 2007. Since Marvin skipped a grade prior to entering grade 7 at the Grammar school, one might expect that he would be shy; however, he was known throughout the grade for his humour and stuffed yak that accompanied him to school everyday for months. There are few fields where Marvin does not excel. Those noteworthy exceptions include swimming, being on time, and driving class. Fortunately, his talents lie in areas of greater significance. He is a science genius and also displays immense proficiency in the arts, stealing the show at Kiwanis festivals and Grammar's Urinetown, where his 2 minute solo was undeniably the highlight of the show. Dominating the virtual world from OMG Pop to Starcraft, he has climbed the ranks, eventually beating Ravee Chen in real-world Black Ops. He can always be relied on for witty chirps, advice, and yummy asian snacks. Together, we have evaded banana peels in Mario Kart, crammed for exams, and journeyed to the real France on the Grade 9 Europe trip and the Canadian one on the Grade 11 Quebec trip. I am not sure what I'll do without Marvin next year when I need an amazing best friend or computer repairs, but I have no doubt he will do great things, with his brilliant mind and great character winning him fame, fortune, and women. -Debi

Belce Yoruk

2 years ago, our Turkish Delight landed in Halifax. This flight was only 1% of her carbon footprint lol.... Our one and only Turkish Basketball star, ashkim, is an out-spoken, rude girl who has an opinion on everything. We have soo many amazing memories with you, from dressing up for our English play to laughing and having fun times on many a Friday night!! A natura athlete as you take her away from her comfort zone of a court of basketball onto a the soccer field and she outdoes herself always. As soon as she stepped on the court, people were in shock, along with Tessa 'Rebounds' Stammberger and Hilary 'Shots Grantmyre, Citadel was running for cover. The best part about going to one of Belce's games is her Turkish sound effects when she rarely messes up..... OUUUUU, HEEEII etc. At school, Belce is an outstanding student, but Mr. Moffat is still working on the uniform: Kilt Please!!!! She's gone through a couple homestays and apartments, but a year later has settled in. Somehow, in the first year, Belce managed to go MISSING lol. There was an alert sent to all team mates that Belce had taken more than 30 second to get home from practice. Overall, Belce is an amazing player and friend and we wish her the best of luck and yak#hda görmey umuyoruz!!—AC-MS-KL-IL-TT-GFM-LA-Jane-Katie

As Community Service Steward, I was fortunate to be able to work with very hardworking students towards initiating positive change this year. Through different fundraisers and organized events, we were able to contribute to many worthy causes and charities. The motivated student body was able to display a sense of camaraderie throughout the school through these events, creating a sense of teamwork, and they had a lot of fun in the process. We were thrilled to surpass our financial goal of raising $10,000 for the Terry Fox Foundation, which was achieved through the engagement of the whole school community. Other fundraisers included numerous food drives for Feed NS, a school supply drive, and an exceptionally successful Prep School Unicef Campaign, resulting in an appreciation certificate from Unicef for a donation of $1658! The Middle and Senior Schools held bake sales, collections, raffles, coffee houses and other exciting fundraisers (such as pie in the face!) for local and international causes and charities including Ovarian Cancer, World Vision, Feed the Children, and Phoenix House. There was even a Fooseball tournament for Somalia. At Christmas, Middle School homerooms adopted local families and bought everything that they needed for a wonderful holiday (grocery gift cards, presents, and necessities). We are a school that cares and loves to give to others! -Isabella Ludovice

COMMUNITY SERVICE

- Prep 1 impressionist artist Adam Bateman gets inspiration from nature during an outing to Point Pleasant park in September.
- M3 students enjoy a special presentation of *Dracula presented by Shakespeare by the Sea.
- Prep students get down and dirty at Noggin's Farm. The entire Prep School made the trip!
- An enthusiastic group of M5s and S1s explore the wonders of France and Spain with their chaperones: Mme Danford, Ms. MacNeil, Ms. Baillie, and Mr. Ellis.
- Student leaders enjoy some down time (or up time?) while at White Point Beach Lodge planning fun activities for the school year.
- S1 Students take a momentary rest from teambuilding activities at Camp Mockingee with Ms. Capalbo, Mr. McGarrigle, Ms. Baillie, Ms. McKegney, Dr. Mike, and Mr. Steeves.
- Prep 1 students have a blast at Pirate's Cove at the Dartmouth Sportsplex.

M3 students visited the Museum of Natural of History on March 1st for a special presentation: "Best of Science on the Sphere." They had a bonus of visiting the "Animals of the Rainforest".

Trips at Grammar come in many forms, from European adventures to local hikes to sports' trips. Some highlights from this year, besides the grade 9/10 trip to Spain and France, include Pier 21, Point Pleasant Park, White Point, Dartmouth Sportsplex, The Skating Oval, Mock Refugee Camp, Natural History Museum, Shakespeare by the Sea, Ottawa, Louisburg, Rebecca Cohn Theatre, Keji, Ballet Jorgen, Camp Mockingee, and Noggin's Farm. Whether educational, recreational or cultural, trips allow students of all ages to learn and have fun while exploring with their classmates and teachers. Thanks to all the chaperones who gave of their time to make these trips possible!

SCHOOL TRIPS

rade 12 students roast marshmellows at the campfire during their imping trip to Kejimkujik National Park in September.
raduation year always starts with this eagerly anticipated trip!

On Feb. 14th, S2 French classes visited Canada's national museum of immigration, Pier 21 in Halifax. A visite en français was arranged by Mme Sweet Smith to mesh with the IB theme of cultural diversity.

PERFORMING ARTS

ART ON STAGE

BAND PROGRAMS AT HGS.

The HGS Bands have had a year full of musical experiences. It was also an exciting year with the move into the new Performing Arts Studio. This year we had five instrumental ensembles at our school: The HGS Beginner Band, The HGS Concert Band. The Select Wind Ensemble. The HGS Jazz Band and also a Junior Jazz Ensemble. In addition to these, The HGS Pep Band performed at the Grammar Classic, and we also started a Choir. The bands performed wonderfully at the Winter Concert in December, and we had a record number of people attend the concert. This was the first performance for our M2 bands, and they rose to the occasion. In the New Year, in addition to other HGS ensembles, the musical pit band began working on the music for Spelling Bee. The pit band had eight musicians from M4 to S3. Matt Zwicker (2011), made time from his studies at Dal to perform percussion duties in the band. The students did a great job playing the music composed for pros. Spring was a busy time with the HGS Concert Band and Jazz Band preparing for a trip to New Brunswick. They performed to school audiences and attended three varied musical performances. In May, all bands participated in the annual HGS Spring Concert. It was indeed an action packed year for the HGS Band Department! ~Dawn Hatfield

de 25th Smual Putnan

This year, H.G.S. presented the 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee, and it was only possible through the efforts of many people! We would like to thank all of the cast and crew for doing a fantastic job! A special thanks to Ms. Capalbo (Artistic Director), Mme Smith (Costume Designer), Mr. Wiggin (Set Design and Construction), Ms. Ffeon Elliot (Choreographer), Ms. Fabiola Mascaro (Marketing), Martazia Johan (artwork), Sophie Moynan (Set Design and Construction), Maha Naeem/Blake Newell (stage managers), Paige Conrad/Liam Healy (assistant stage managers), Jessica Basta/Tosin Fashoranti/Jisu Song (Props and Costumes), and Mr. Bhathena (Program Layout and Design). Thanks to our fabulous pit band: Natalie Williams (flute), Eleanor Morum (flute), Tara Sverko (clarinet), Christine Moore (clarinet), Chris Jiang (alto sax.), Colin VandenHof (synth/keyboard), Tom Fraser (percussion), Matthew Zwicker (percussion), Dr. Doug Rasmusson (cello-guest musician), Mr. Shawn Whynot (Musical Director/piano), and Ms. Dawn Hatfield (conductor). Thanks to the great technical crew: Mahmoud Ahari, Grace Bu, Barsha Chowdhury, Gareth Ellis, Martazia Johan, and Ryan Lee, and Daniel Park (Videographer).

The Jungle Boo

A colorful tale about a boy raised by animals, The Jungle Book took the stage in March with beautiful music and dance. Congratulations to all the performers and thank you to the directors, Jennifer Gresham, Ashlea Hawker and Jane Messenger, for their vision. Thank you to Renée Forrestall, Rachael Lynch and all the Prep 3 and Prep 4 students whose set designs made the story come alive. Thank you to Shawn Whynot and his son, Liam Whynot, for the music direction and Kevin O' Carroll for the lighting.

Middle School Drama Club in Action:

The H.G.S. Creative Collection

The middle school drama club departed from its long-standing tradition of Shakespearean productions this year and mounted its first ever collective creation. The group was directed by Mr. Follini and special guest Garry Williams, DaPoPo Theatre's Artistic Director, with Ms. MacNeil reprising her role as producer. The students were responsible for the whole process of creating and staging a show. They started with the seed of an idea, turned it into a full-fledged script, and then staged a performance of it. Students improvised material based on a number of questions about life as a middle school student. The script was developed out of these improvisations and stories from the actors' own experience. Songs and choreography were woven in as well, and students were fully immersed in the collaborative process at all stages. The result was a new addition to the theatrical repertoire from a segment of society whose voices are not often represented on stage. Thanks also to all students who played a supporting role in the final stages of the production after this yearbook article went to press.

The core members of the group this year were:

Hannah Givner
Lauren Jollimore-Behie
Olivia DeJager
Oliver Cormier
Michael Waller
Deivan Steele
Nika Gantar
Toby Partridge
Aria Publicover
Katherine Morris
Antonia Lewin-LaFrance

imagination HALIFAX GRAMMAR SCHOOL PERFORMING ARTS STUDIO CAMPAIGN

Months of planning, fundraising and building went by.

Spring 2012

A special and unique new performing art space was created, filled with light and ample and appropriate space for music classes, band practices, drama rehearsals and speech and debate activities.

"Having a dedicated performing arts space to learn, to collaborate, to compose and most importantly, to take risks in, will foster a creative confidence that students will carry with them long after their years at HGS."

Noah Pink, HGS Graduate 2001

This year's team was well represented in junior high races, the Metro High School Race Series. and the Capital Region and NSSAF Provincial Championships. Top results were achieved by the senior boy's team who won the Metro Banner, placed second at regionals, and placed 4th at the NSSAF provincial championships. The junior boys' and senior girls' teams both placed 8th at regionals. Team members who raced are listed.

Senior Boys: Marc Cameron, Alex Lingley, Mitchell Jacobs, Sven Stammberger, Andrev Honderich, John Muir, Jonathan Perrie, Thomas Gwynne-Timothy, Mark Flowerdew, Colin VandenHof.

Senior Girls: Ursula Calder, Gillian Fong-McMaster, Erin MacNeil, Franziska Gnann.

Touch Football

The Middle School Touch Football Team certainly had a year to be proud of. Its members found ways to win in every way, from out gaining opponents with long touchdown passes from the arm of Owen Patterson or playing perfect defense to shut out opponents. Even when our offense could only score one point, the defense didn't allow any and kept the lead until the end. The team earned a seed in the junior high playoffs, and continued playing incredibly well to finish the season. Congratulations to all of the players this year for a fantastic season. Team members: AJ Case, Alister Knox, Andrew Delicaet, Cameron Moffatt, Chris Towle, David Patterson, Gabe Stephen, Graham Rutledge, Gregor Zed, Gus Doane, Jelani Wright, Michael Murphy, Nathaniel Grant, Owen Patterson.

Jr. High Hockey

This year the HGS middle school hockey team played a number of games and was involved in several tournaments. A fall highlight was the ACIS tournament which saw the school compete against several other teams from as far away as Toronto! Coaches Bill O'Hearn and Dr. Mike were impressed with the development made by their skaters and look forward to growing the turnout next fall! Team members included: Captain Graham Rutledge, Luke and Lauren MacDonnell, Goalie Gregor Zed who turned out several fine performances especially against Sacred Heart, A.J. Case, Oliver Cormier, Jack DeGooyer, Kieran Flannery-Fleck, Tom Fraser, Jamie Grant, Connor Keefe, Jeremy LaFlamme, Mark MacKay, Michael Murphy, Jacob Steele, Deschanel Fynn, and Chris Towle.

Jr. Girls ACIS Volleyball

Coaches:

Fabiola Mascaro. Colleen Walsh

This year, Grammar participated in the ACIS Jr. Girls Volleyball Tournament. With only 6 short practices, this group of wonderful, talented and energetic girls improved their skills immensely, bonded as a team and represented the school with amazing school spirit! We are grateful for parents that cheered us on, faculty and staff that supported us and the girls that brought the team to life and always showed true Grammar spirit. Team Roster: Miranda Crawley, Hannah Ellis, Lior Erlich, Carra Honderich, Anjali Kapilan, Julia Kim, Alix Lane, Carolin Lewitzka, Lilly Li, Maryam Naeem, Rebecca Nicholson, Alexa Pirie, Aria Publicover, Olivia Smith, Masa Sweidan.

Prep Skating

Monday afternoons are a busy time in the Prep School! Close to a hundred skaters head to the SMU arena after school to take part in the Prep School Skating Program. Budding hockey stars and figure skaters, along with students who have never skated before, enjoy an hour of recreational skating on the rink. Several teachers and many parents also join in the fun, making it an HGS family affair!

The HGS Golf team had a very successful season. The boy's team, which consisted of Matt Gallupe, Thomas Gwynn-Timothy, Owen Patterson and Jake MacDonnell, came third in the Metro Region, which allowed them to qualify for the NSSAF Provincial Championships. The boys had a good tournament and finished in 5th place. Amanda Volcko qualified as an individual for the NSSAF Championships and ended up winning the silver medal for the second time in her career.

Coaches: Darrell MacInnis and Tim McGarrigle

Skiing

The junior boys team skied as intermediates, won the Regional Banner, and finished second at the provincial championships at Wentworth. At the Provincials, Evan Ross won the silver medal and Connor Keefe won the bronze. The team also included Ian Keefe, Kieran Flannery-Fleck and Ben Grantmyre. The senior girls team of Annika Gnann, Amy Minnikin, Tara Sverko, Frankie Gnann and Claire Neilson also qualified for Provincials. They skied well narrowly missing out on a podium finish.

Richard Waller was the only HGS senior boy to qualify for the Provincials on the strength of his individual performances in the qualifying races. Congratulations go out to all the skiers from coaches, Mr. Wiggin, Mr. Faltner and Mr. Curran

Other H.G.S. sports teams included the tennis team and the ACIS swimming team. While the tennis team normally competes at the ACIS Rothesay tournament, the team didn't even have a chance to show their skills on the court because of the rainy weather. Instead, the tennis players played friendly games of badminton in the gym. The ACIS swim team had representatives from grade 3 to grade 9 and competed with enthusiasm, sportsmanship, and success on April 14th at the Canada Games Centre.

Tennis Team Members: Kaisla Richardson, Alex MacDonald, Jill Taylor, Ava Gordon, Sara Jovanovic, Renuka Koilpillai, Inhwa Kim, Quinn Stewart, Morgan Hage, Lizzie O'Carroll, Soleil Chahine, Mary Ellen Forward, Andrew Song, Deivan Steele, Connor Keefe, Alister Knox, Jeremy LaFlamme, Andrew Machum, Aram Al-Afif, Sven Stammberger, and Mikey Fraser.
